The variable values for each case, the regression method and the x and y coordinates are defined and the regression plot is generated. It is possible to save both the plot and the data to the computer. Additionally, it is possible to generate a difference plot, residuals plot and a linear identity line. The advantages of the application are: - Easy to use and even if it is a new user, it does not require any programming knowledge and it is intuitive- Convenient for example, if you want to make a big set of data into a presentation with very few mouse clicks.

Also you do not have to be a professional with a computer in order to use this application- Very effective especially for big data- Plots are generated very quickly- Data can be saved to a computer- Plots can be saved as jpg, png, jpeg and a pdf file- A set of 5 values for the regression method are available- No programming knowledge is required- No additional software required

The main features of the application are: - Define the values for each case - Define the regression method - Enter the variable values for each case - Generate the plot, it includes the residuals and the difference- The plot can be saved as jpg, png, jpeg and pdf - The plot can be saved to a computer- The plot can be saved to your computer - The file size is small

Basic Features- Very simple to use- Plots are generated very quickly- Very effective especially for big data- Provides detailed information- Allows you to save data and the generated plot- If you know how to use R, the application requires no knowledge- The plots are generated very quickly- No additional software required- Plots can be saved as jpg, png, jpeg and pdf- Data can be saved to a computer-

This software is a powerful and user-friendly package for statistical analysis of chemical data using R software. The basic concept is to perform all calculations using the R statistical programming language. cp-R consists of three main components: Cp-R: Analyze CP Data Cp-R offers statistical methods for analyzing data obtained from the chemical Patology test. The most important component is the regression analysis, which allows the user to fit a line to the data and identify parameters that characterize the line. The package is able to perform the most common statistical tests for assessing data quality and, when data are not normally distributed, uses non-parametric methods. The package also includes a line plot and multiple linear regression analysis, a useful tool for finding key physicochemical constants that allow quantification of the relationship between the chemical pathology parameters and the substance type. The results of the regression analysis are presented as plots of the residuals (deviations from the line of identity), which allows the user to identify possible outliers and to find the parameters that can explain the different chemical pathologies. Cp-R offers different tests for testing normality and homoscedasticity, allowing the user to avoid problems with the assumptions of normality and homoscedasticity. Cp-R can also perform multiple linear regression analysis, identify key parameters, evaluate the quality of the data and compare the regression results with other software packages. Rcmdr:

Compare 2 Chemical Pathologies This component of cp-R enables you to compare chemical pathologies using graphical tools and extract the parameters that characterize the regression line. Rcmdr uses the linear regression model to fit the regression line and to test whether the slope and intercept of the line differ significantly from zero. Re: Cp-R: Chemical Pathology R (2) I just finished installing the update and am having difficulties, and I cannot find it in Program Files. Where is it? Thanks. EDIT: Ok, found it and now have problems. I am not sure what to do. It only opened once. Now it is opening twice. I am having the same problem with you, but when I got to the file icon, it showed "cannot be opened", and this was what was on the desktop. I tried to just delete it and re-open it and it says "Cannot be opened. The file is in use by another process." and this happens whether I click on the icon or open the
